

We have been using with great success the Risco range of products now for over 10 years, in the ever changing, demanding and fast moving world of the security industry it is always reassuring to be able to work with a company that has total commitment not only to a very high standard of products but just as importantly customer service.

This extraordinary high level of customer service we have received over the years from people like John Coleman, Branch Manager and Rob Evan, Sales Director along with the rest of their team as always instilled our company with a high degree of confidence in Risco as a key supplier.

As such I would have no hesitation in recommending the Risco Company and their products to any potential users.
