Personal Profile

Welcome to my personal section of the RISCO Group's UK website. I am the Regional Sales Manager covering the South East of England.

My background has been focused on sales within manufacturing companies in the Electronic security industry, specialising in Intruder products, CCTV and Access control, and both passive and active infrared detection devices.

Throughout my career I have succeeded in building relationships with security installation companies by means of product demonstrations and sales/technical support. Also with end users where installation projects require the manufacturing company to work hand in hand with the Installer to offer the most competitive and comprehensive solution to the end user.

I joined RISCO Group in September 2009 and have already concentrated myself on the diverse and competitive product range that RISCO offer the security industry.

Personal Objectives

My personal aim is to continue to build strong and lasting relationships with installation companies and end users to continue to understand their needs within a changing market place.

My intention is continue the professionalism shown by all of my colleagues in all of the areas of RISCO Group's business model.
